

...and Kyroot said:

There can be no lasting peace in the land of the living.

...and Kyroot said:

Although Life causes some to applaud an abundance of ideas, only a few individuals truly need, thus want diversity.

For the many,
just the illusion
of choice and variation
will do nicely,
thank you.

...and Kyroot said:

It is true that "You can't fight fate.",

unless of course,

you're fated

to do so.

...and Kyroot said:

Water need not be touted to the thirsty.

Only those with no needs must be told
what they want.

(It's probably a good thing that Joshua didn't confront the walls of Madison Avenue.)

...and Kyroot said:

Your time at the Factory can be spent learning to be unnatural and revolutionary,
or else you
can just roll along as a natural production model always adjusting
to the inevitable.

...and Kyroot said:

In ordinary conspiracy theories it is held that the secret controllers must
"conceal their intentions",
"misdirect the controlled". and finally,"deny their own existance."

Within such external notions,
the Few can see reflections of how Life directs Mans' consciousness toward His own existance.

...and Kyroot said:

Over 90% of all so-called "psychiatric problems" are due to poor posture.

Check it out.

...and Kyroot said:

Whatever can, or may be said about the reality-out-there is a parallel

comment on the human-in-here.

...and Kyroot said:

Once, the powerful needed only to control water, food, and land;

now the stakes

is

information.

Quick,

A.T. & T.,

put me

through to me.

...and Kyroot said:

In the 3-D world, everything is ad hoc, everything.

...and Kyroot said:

Number 109 of, "Life's Hints Hits Deaf (or at least, Deformed) Ears.":

Mans' historic belief; in conspiracy theories is, in part, the unrecognized sensation that behind the visible
actors
are unseen forces.

(How often, do you reckon, can people stand to be "almost right" without actually getting hurt
or
at least, seriously pissed?)

...and Kyroot said:

What if the partnership-sensation in Man is in fact, a low level manifestation of two of the Forces at work?, interacting, and struggling amidst itself
for efficient
channels
of growth
and expansion.

"What if"
indeed.

...and Kyroot said:

The Real Revolutionist understands that controll is best effected through the process: Pain,
then fear,
then
dependence.

(What a nefarious, yet profitable inner plot this may prove to be.)

...and Kyroot said:

Even the barks of a mad dog are true reflections of his natural condition.

...and Kyroot said:

Any "new knowledge" that does not threaten someone is neither new, nor knowledge.

Furthermore:

Any "new idea" that can be reasonably debated, or amended
was either
not new,
or
is now deceased.

...and Kyroot said:

He who defines,

ultimately controls.

...and Kyroot said:

All of the influential religions, philosophies, and political theories initially frightened and enraged some body of consequence.

If a new concept is not seen as dangerous
it will not be truly seen.

...and Kyroot said:

Keep up the pretenses,
hold down the expenses.

...and Kyroot said:

The powerless are driven to speak of coming generations as a form of wealth available even
to them.

...and Kyroot said:

Ignorance amy seem silly in the weak,

but in the powerful it is awesome.

...and Kyroot said;

Man seems normally surrounded, if not engulfed, by sheer dribble.

It is now
my pleasure
to be able to offer
an opaque version
of that same dribble.

...and Kyroot said:

To the Real Revolutionist, ordinary consciousness tastes like your foot feels when it's asleep.

...and Kyroot said:

It has been said that "Man is the only creature that attacks His own kind.", but what is not seen is Life itself, pitting man alone, against enertia and
stagnation:

There
is
the true,
yet
unrecognized
conflict.

...and Kyroot said:

From one, 3-D view, lack of talent could be seen as the fuel behind the desire for dominance.

...and Kyroot said:

A hitch hiker never runs out of gas.

...and Kyroot said:

As baseless as ordinary prayer may seem from one view, it is again, an unrecognized admission
by Man of His powerless
condition.

(I might also note for you that only the powerful can take such ideas
nonchalantly.)

...and Kyroot said:

All Men are equal in the presence of fleas.

...and Kyroot said:

There was once a man who claimed to have a collection of autographs of Jesus, and another fellow offered to swap him one of Muhammad's for ten of his,
and the first guy says, "Hey, how can you have an autograph from Muhammad; he was illiterate?"

"I know", answered

the other guy,

"That's why it's so valuable."

...and Kyroot said:

At least sailors don't have to fear for an increase in the cost of wind.....

...and Kyroot said:

At least, thank god, neither do priests and politicians.