

...and Kyroot said:

The Revolutionist tells fresh recruits that a real Rebell must either be a philosopher, or a soldier when He knows
that's not so.

...and Kyroot said:

The developement of one's sense-of-self is like the movement of a State from anarchy to monarchy. The would-be Ruling Powers first begin to call for calm and quiet; then they begin to speak in the name of all the People, and lastly they adopt the manner and mantle of "sole power."

Then,
the deed
is done,
all is well.
the People
are home.

...and Kyroot said:

Many recruits can already say they've definitely been "some where", they just can't say
where.

...and Kyroot said:

General Notions You Can Generally Count On: You should generally suspect
suspicious people.
You should generally suspect
people who suspect
other people.

That about covers
it from here, now
back up
to you
in the booth.

...and Kyroot said:

The Revolutionist knows that if we wait long enough the present generation T00,
will "get a hair cut."

10/19/87 P96
whence
6/ ~~13~~ lies

10/19/87-(6)

...and Kyroot said:

The People's philosophers have forever debated, "Does Man's destiny lie in His past, or in His future?", and only the Revolutionist knows the correct answer to lie at right angles to even the place from whence such questions are asked.

...and Kyroot said:

If Mozart were alive today I'm sure HE would agree.

Pg. 8
"be so"

...and Kyroot said:

The People have been called many un-fine things: rude, crude, lame and barbaric, which may all
so, but you should remember
my friend, you too are a People.

...and Kyroot said:

Regarding again, that ever-popular subject: Can you conceive of reaching a position in relationship to death
that is not a matter of you
dreading to leave Life,
but
of Life dreading
for you
to leave It.

79.10
"had"

...and Kyroot said:

The Church has an opportunity to newly describe god three hundred years ago, but missed it. They could have simply used the General Laws Of Motion.

...and Kyroot said:

Would He be worthy of the name "Revolutionist" who would act, or think differently in a palace rather than the bushes?

"thinks"
Pg. 12

~

...and Kyroot said:

An ole sore-head writer once writ that "Eighty per cent of mankind is just stuff to fill graves with." I wonder where he hinks the other
twenty per cent
are going later.

...and Kyroot said:

And one Revolutionist looked intently into the Bushes at His own wayward recruits
and exclaimed, "You bastards, would you live forever?"

...and Kyroot said:

Only the People, and I do mean the COMMON People, believe in the "inanimate."

...and Kyroot said:

Only the People believe in the inanimate, AND its power-and-impotence.

...and Kyroot said:

While many ordinary malcontents rattle on, and threaten disruptive actions
in the name of first "this cause",
and then "that one", the Real Revolutionist knows He is always safe to "sally forth" under the glorious banner of,
"Indifference."

Pg. 17
"I" //

...and Kyroot said:

The cry that "We must all hang together, or we shall surely hang seperately.", sounds suspiciously like a Man bent on bein' hung.

(I believe I'd just stay-in-the-car.)

...and Kyroot said:

A certain Revolutionist was overheard to say, "This is worse than wrong, this is useless."

...and Kyroot said:

While Men argue over what is "natural", and what is "un-natural & contrived.", they miss the chance to proclaim a brand new diety by simply identifying ANY Man who can do something artifical
and un-natural.

...and Kyroot said:

Can you recognize the Revolutionist in His proclamations?

"Pg 21"

"he'd"

...and Kyroot said:

If Mozart were alive today he'd say, "Agree to WHAT?"