

...and Kyroot said:

The Real Revolutionist sees that self-proclaimed victors who continue to non-physically attack their foe have not only never conquered same,
but have in fact, yet to even properly
engage him.

(Do not expect applicable military history from famous atheists who spend their energies bad-mouthing god.)

...and Kyroot said:

The Revolutionist does not see Life as offering Man rewards, or chastisements, just creative resistance.

...and Kyroot said:

Recruits should keep in mind that all victories are someone's funeral.

...and it can be difficult to order flowers when the band
is so loud in the background...
it's a good thing
I already know
my address.

...and Kyroot said:

The Revolutionist must at all times, sieze new power when and wherever He can, and worry about its uses
and consequences
later.

...and Kyroot said:

There was once a little hamlet that decided they wanted their own town square complete with a statue, but through lack of funds, could not afford to hire a sculpter. Then one fellow, who had been to some of the big cities, and seen their parks and statues, announced that he knew the "secret". He assured his neighbors that all they need do was lay out the town square, and get a whole bunch of birds to hang out there and that they would forthwith "attract" statues.

(And to think that some had the nerve to doubt that I could pass first year "Logic" if they would just let me take it
ONE MORE TIME.)

...and Kyroot said:

O.k., you People there in the City, listen up, if you want the benefit of conversing with moi.

It seems as though
you have two choices: You can either tell me what you know, or what you think about what you know. If your choice is the latter, excuse me for just a moment...

...and Kyroot said:

If a revolution is possible only when the People are in accord,
and properly informed, then I strongly advise against the holding of one's breath, etc.

...and Kyroot said:

Has been said that "The brave and enlightened admit to no destiny.", which is all right...I once heard a drowning victim
exclaim,
"Water, what water?"

...and Kyroot said:

Although little known at the time, and absolutely forgot^{🗨️} now, there once was a philosophical system known as the,
"Oh, Occasionally School", and when they were asked such questions as, "Do people ever change? Does the truth 'ever out?'" these thinkers would reply,
"Oh, occasionally."

(You think they were too
splendid for their own good, or what.)

...and Kyroot said:

It is of extreme importance that one strive relentlessly NOT to suffer the "slings and arrows"
of routine misfortune.

...and Kyroot said:

And then there was the guy that singed his letters, "Love, me — no,
I mean the REAL
me."

...and Kyroot said:

One should not write in a notebook larger than one's own head.

...and Kyroot said:

Before settling down for what journey may lie ahead, find out first if anyone in the life boat speaks
German.

...and Kyroot said:

Motto # 23: If you can't presently overcome it, for god's sake hide it.

...and Kyroot said:

I urge you to think twice before taking as a jogging partner,
a rooster named Seiko.

...and Kyroot said:

In the City, ideas TOO strange, do not get studied; those who present them,
however,
are.

...and Kyroot said:

To one seeking absolute, total, complete control, every one is a potential foe.

(Praise-be, for another safe, "N.P.S.", that is,
"Nothing of Personal Significance.")

...and Kyroot said:

The Real Revolutionist might be "faithful" only to willfull and useless habits, and to Life itself.
(What choices
are there, actually?)

...and Kyroot said:

Under certain passing circumstances, a Revolutionist could be temporarily full of sleep,
full of booze,
even full of shit,
but
full of memories — NEVER!

...and Kyroot said:

It is said that out around the Bushes was once a guy who had no views, only an overview.

...and Kyroot said:

Every place is the same distance from here.

...and Kyroot said:

Being shot is but one use for your chest.

...and Kyroot said:

Recruits need to find a place to camp where nothing is indiginous.

...and Kyroot said:

Never blame your intestines for what your stomach did;
never blame your stomach for what your mouth did;
never blame your mouth for what your eyes did, and never blame your eyes for what your brain did,

AND

never,

never.

EVER

blame your "poor widdle brain"

for

ANY-thing....

...there, there,

little brainie.

...and Kyroot said:

It is better to be "alive and well" than just "well."