

...and Kyroot said:

All surprises arise from a lack of "time consciousness"...

also, all
disappointments.

Oh yes,
fears
as well.

...AND Kyroot said:

In my Equation, "I" is always interacting with "Not-I".

...and Kyroot said:

You should really try and find the answer to this one: Is it worse to be merely ignorant, or to be ignorant of your ignorance?

Of course, if you are exhilaratingly dumb how would you ever know you had found the answer??

...and Kyroot said:

In the land of 3-D-consciousness things can only deliver limited
info about themselves.

(Do any of you
per chance,
now consider
yourselves
"things"?)

...and Kyroot said:

Common things happen to common people.....

over, and over,
and over.....

...and Kyroot said:

You must learn to attack train your emotions, not neuter them.

...and Kyroot said:

The closer I skate to the "secret" the more it is that I should refer to my comments not as
maps, but as sketches;
abstract
verbal
paintings.

...and Kyroot said:

I note that one of the City definitions of knowledge is the
"conformity of the object
to the intellect." which sounds expansive enough
for most purposes, but I should warn you that it is much too dainty and delicate to be of any revolutionary use.

...and Kyroot said:

For the Real Revolutionist extreme measures measure, and offer extreme rewards.

...and Kyroot said:

The Revolution must be truly cost efficient or it is doomed.

...and Kyroot said:

While no human, on the 3-D-level, can foresee, or consider every possible occurrence, or combination of forces, the Revolutionist should still never be caught in a situation from which prior thought would have saved Him.

...and Kyroot said:

The ultimate in sophistry is in believeing, and teaching that there is an alternative.

...and Kyroot said:

The Revolutionist knows that uprisings can be nurtured, and fresh ground won not just when there is a specific grievance on which to base a skirmish, but also at times when there is just a general condition of dissatisfaction.

...and Kyroot said:

You should distinguish between two areas of Art, the non-verbal,
Blue Circuitry of "How I feel",
and the literary, Yellow Brained
of "How I think because of how I feel.", (which, to many, seems like, "How I think about how I feel.")
But let me prod you further:
do you actually "feel" about your
thoughts,
or
just
think you do?

...and Kyroot said:

Question:For the Revolutionist, out in-the-Bushes, in what areas does originality, and the ability to improvise count most?

Answer: EVERYWHERE.

...and Kyroot said:

What is more unpredictable that the effect of new-data on the People.

...and Kyroot said:

Although some in the City seem want to picture the Real Revolutionist
as a slightly romantic figure,
given to higher interests of thought and feeling, His singular stance, and core
ability, however, remains
in the area of combat,
conflict.
and
survival.

...and Kyroot said:

As unreasonable as it may sound, the Revolutionist knows that the closer one might sit to the throne of the Ruling Powers
the less safe one becomes.

...and Kyroot said:

With the People, it oftimes seems as though the less they know
the more they are sure;
the less they
are certain,
the more
they are convinced.

...and Kyroot said:

If the morality of the City had ever proven to actually produce
profitable virtue, storm
troopers would have become virgins.

...and Kyroot said:

The truly "competent, complete" performer would be one who would declare:
"If I were not already myself
I would pay to see me."

...and Kyroot said:

There's only one possession worthy of working up a sweat over.

...and Kyroot said:

The Revolutionist, knowing the number of areas which the People are bound to protect, can keep them properly distracted and off balance by periodically threatening to attack the past.

...and Kyroot said:

All famous people should be shot, axed, or stretched to the breaking point.

...and Kyroot said:

In one City I observed an unusual celebration called, "Unholy Minion Day" wherein each person held a mirror up to their face while bowing deeply to the person next to them, and greasily pronouncing, "I presume you too are human and may yet err...thank you, thank you so much, thank you so very much...."

...and Kyroot said:

One busy day I announced that "after you die, everyone's the same.", but then I thought, "So what! It's already that way most places."

...and Kyroot said:

Anyone who would learn from their mistakes is a bloody coward.