

...and Kyroot said:

One manner by which Life keeps the struggle, and Its expansion in motion is in having Man continually mis-identify the foe.
As in mistaking genetic balls for cultural serves.

...and Kyroot said:

Those outside a particular dance can never understand, or appreciate the intricate, subtle steps involved between the partners.

The Peoples of one
State are astounded and filled with wonder at how their neighbors tolerate their unruly monarch.

(I know you say you want to understand the exotic and the unexplored, but few are the reptilian anthropologists who actually participate in the Exchange Student Program with the snakes.)

...and Kyroot said:

There are some things worth doing that are not worth setting out to do.

...and Kyroot said:

Wearing the garb of a "wise one", an ole feller strode up to the edge of the village and loudly proclaimed, "I do not expect to come here and be able to sell you a parcel of warts and boils.", and subsequent events proved him correct.

...and Kyroot said:

There was a certain City Doctor of Melancholy, I mean, Philosophy, who conjectured that "If one becomes TOO boring one could cause it in others."

Heavens!

...and Kyroot said:

As a would-be Revolutionist, you cannot allow yourselves to simply be "blown about" by every little wind of certainty.

...and Kyroot said:

A sore-head-City definition: Greed, one of civilization's better alarm clocks.

"Get up, get up, it's seven o'clock;
good bye Morpheus, Hello Dow and Jones."

...and Kyroot said:

Tis been said that "Man is born free, but is everywhere in chains.", and I expound: "Change was born dollars and pounds, but is everywhere in nickles and dimes."

I say, pardon me,
but can you break
my twenty?

Not A twenty,
but
MY
twenty.

...and Kyroot said:

Your Revolutionist conduct of today will be forgotten tomorrow.

Behave as a Revolutionist nonetheless.

...and Kyroot said:

Heard a man in the City express his concern over the fact that opposites do not seem to always receive equal coverage. For instance, he noted that store signs that say "Open, Come In", never on the reverse side read, "Closed, Go Away."

...and Kyroot said:

There was this other poor chap in that same City who began to have someone else's day dreams.

...and Kyroot said:

Reasons aren't everything

...and Kyroot said:

Always remember: The best way out IS the best way out.

...and Kyroot said:

Another significant, long-awaited, and, I might add, sorely needed book would be the one entitled, "How To Look At Stuff."

...and Kyroot said:

A broken heart is a terrible thing to waste.

...and Kyroot said:

On a certain quite real, quite cellular level, Men equate fame with power;
hence they worship, submit to their measurements of celebrities.

(You might further note
gossip as a low-level form of submission.)

...and Kyroot said:

Your success in the Revolution is not controlled by the failures, or breakdowns of any Institutions, or organizations but you.

...and Kyroot said:

Attention, attention; Official Warning: According to some late breaking, reliable reports, in certain parts of the City reality is loose and spreading quickly.

...and Kyroot said:

If you think you should probably say that "You're in charge.", you're probably not.

If someone else states that they are, you should probably take some heed.

...and Kyroot said:

Let us not fail to take note of one of the City's Great Mis-Expectations:
The contrast between what Man is made to say He expects, and what He gets.

...and Kyroot said:

Tell, pray tell, what ability is there but natural?

...and Kyroot said:

There can be no freedom for those in the serene embrace of the Dominate-Submissive Dance.

...and Kyroot said:

The only law woth a got-damn to a Revolutionist is a self-made one.

(Is also the only kind applicable.)

...and Kyroot said:

As close as a Revolutionist might come to what others call "evil" would be in withdrawing His basic awareness from something; a form of denial which is far removed from the creative charge of those truly called.

...and Kyroot said:

All present conditions are proper and function and do not require change.
All change is proper and function and does not require change, or explanation.

...and Kyroot said:

Perhaps you were propitious to correct my rhetoric, but why shoot me in the liver?

...and Kyroot said:

How's this for horizontally curious: Those with nothing generally have nothing to say.

...and Kyroot said:

If you actually insist on trying to ride some of your City dreams, at least don't put 'em up wet.

...and Kyroot said:

The Real Revolutionist expects no sacrafice other than the meaningless.