

...and Kyroot said:

Never hold an opinion without coevally holding its opposite. Fair's fair.

...and Kyroot said:

The only severe deviations Life can allow are those you keep to yourself.

...and Kyroot said:

The past ultimately always speaks the language of regrets.

...and Kyroot said:

There are certain laws governing education in the City that are yet unknown, for instance: You can't learn nothing there.

...and Kyroot said:

Heard it said in the City that "Enthusiasm is NOT success.", but with a Revolutionist it just might be otherwise.

...and Kyroot said:

All City sentences are incomplete,
and all City ideas are inconclusive.

...and Kyroot said:

Remember: Its never too late to get a rash.

...and Kyroot said:

Don't waste your time, energy, eye sight, or shoe leather going OUT looking for your enemies.

...and Kyroot said:

A few years, or maybe it was a few yards from here, one Revolutionist used to tell His troops each morning,
"Let us be passionately impartial."

...and Kyroot said:

The best strategy of all is, of course, the one we can't talk about.

...and Kyroot said:

There used to be this one chap over in the North Sector City park who would stand on a small boy, and yell at passers-by, "Beware of an orthodox that ain't YOUR dox."

...and Kyroot said:

Sure, sure, shift the blame, that's what blame's for.

...and Kyroot said:

A noun is just a verb that's feeling bad. And if all YOU see are nouns, YOU'RE not feeling so hot yourself.

...and Kyroot said:

In the 3-D-world, the truth is simply the contour between what you like and don't like.

...and Kyroot said:

Men still mull about wondering, "What's going on?" when it's THEM that's going on.

...and Kyroot said:

I heard it said by one City scribe, "There is a right way of saying something, and a wrong way of saying something.", but I gotta tell you, there's NO way of saying something.

...and Kyroot said:

Yes, yet another tantalizing description of the City: A place where everyone demands answers, while no one has the slightest notion what the goddamned questions are.

...and Kyroot said:

As you know, I try and maintain some hope for the City, and of late I have received a modicum of encouragement by my exposure to several local enterprises, and their mottos, to wit: A church whose slogan is, "We don't give a damn."; the hospital whose logo state, "Fuck you.", and the travel agency which simply said, "Go to hell."

...and Kyroot said:

"History", "current events", and "the news" are some of Life's more astounding breath taking nom de guerre.

...and Kyroot said:

Don't give 'em anything to go on.