

...and Kyroot said:

Only a Real Revolutionist strives to remain alert to possible additional help even when the battle is going good.

...and Kyroot said:

I heard of one ole fellow in the City who was so poor he only had ONE delusion.

...and Kyroot said:

Men rectify their individual errors by memory, mankind, by history.

...and Kyroot said:

Warning: Some of this material may not be suitable for children under thirty-six.

...and Kyroot said:

One rather vain City politico asked his media advisor if it was better to be "bloated, or mis-quoted?"

...and Kyroot said:

In the City, in some manner or the other, all talk is a gasping-for-air.

...and Kyroot said:

There was this City guy who thought "apocryphal" meant an "unsubstantiated pharmacist."

...and Kyroot said:

To the average City mind all change is a perversion.

...and Kyroot said:

Never trust anyone who's not smarter than you.

...and Kyroot said:

Another example of the City dichotomy between their reality, and perception thereof: An unranked fighter in a title match is asked how he can take his chances seriously in light of the overwhelming odds the bookmakers have given against him, and he says, "All I gotta do is beat the champ, not the odds.". Almost sounds profound. But in cosmopolitan contests, go with odds, not with a clever quip from a canvas-back bum.

...and Kyroot said:

In apparent response to some positive statement he'd heard, one ole City
sorehead declared, "Oh yeah?,
well if life's so "great" why haven't more people NOTICED it?"

...and Kyroot said:

Hell is filled with half read instructions.

...and Kyroot said:

What you may REALLY like will, by and large, probably stay hidden from you.

...and Kyroot said:

I guess, at least on an odd weekend now and then, you could look upon life itself - our own mortal existence, as the supreme con game.

...and Kyroot said:

No matter what Western Union, or the Postal Service may claim, the most common means of communication is the "Whine-O-Gram".

...and Kyroot said:

The true genius, the ultimate audacity is always in the simple and direct.

...and Kyroot said:

Suffering is the only way some People can find peace.

...and Kyroot said:

In the City I keep hearing the cry, "We MUST face up to reality.", what, pray tell, is it they are presently facing?

...and Kyroot said:

Those who declare that "the best is yet to come" generally are hoping to cater the affair.

...and Kyroot said:

At the very least, as a temporary measure: Do it when you can, and SMILE when you can't.

...and Kyroot wrapped up:

The last word has never been said.