

...and Kyroot said:

Oftimes a Revolutionist has the opportunity, if not the inclination, to be someone just playing Himself.

...and Kyroot said:

It does seem difficult for ordinary people NOT to get alarmed at the facts.

-

...and Kyroot said:

You'll never get anywhere without encountering crossroads and forks.

...and Kyroot said:

Generally speaking, if you look right at it you won't see it.

...and Kyroot said:

During a disagreement one guy demanded of another (or maybe it was of himself)
"Who died and left YOU in charge?", and came the response, "I did."

...and Kyroot said:

A personal query the Revolutionist should keep before Him, "What is equal to the correct?"

...and Kyroot said:

He who comes in last is a mirage. I.e., there IS no "last."

...and Kyroot said:

Hell is filled with other people's garbage.

...and Kyroot said:

There is a man who lives on a raft near Madagascar who says He "Knows what it all means...insofar",
He adds, "as it means
ANY thing."

...and Kyroot said:

Remember, regardless of the various names that pop up from time to time, in all political affairs, (and in your own internal ones), there are only TWO partisan groups:
Those in power and those not.

You may also ignore all of the variously named political ideologies for they are all the same, with the sole goal of "get the power".

Isn't it surprising how simple things are once you get the right grip on the monkey.

...and Kyroot said:

A Revolutionist once realized, and noted to no one in particular, besides His own ole rusty self the following, (spelled with three "l's"): What you really have is whatever is left after you have forgotten, or lost all you THOUGHT you had.

...and Kyroot said:

That one ole City Philosopher I sometimes particularly enjoy, recently proclaimed, "There are two ways of looking at everything; this way,
and some other way."

...and Kyroot said:

In the City panaceas don't cure anything.

...and Kyroot said:

Here's a "what-if" for you heavy duty troopers: What if brain molecules could speak directly, without having to go through the middle-man stage of the tongue?

...and Kyroot said:

If EVERY one's gonna dance you don't gotta wax the bottoms of YOUR shoes.

...and Kyroot said:

Another difference you might care to note tween us-&-them: In the City, when THEY lie they gotta believe otherwise.

...and Kyroot said:

I recently heard this term over in the in-town sector, "compulsive behavior."
Are those City folks gonna beat repeated redundancy to death, or what!

...and Kyroot said:

All prayers for help are camouflaged cries for more intelligence.

...and Kyroot said:

If you believe in one thing you'll believe in two...hell, if you believe in one thing you
GOTTA believe in two.

...and Kyroot said:

If you reveal a little, you've revealed too much.