

...and Kyroot said:

Oiling your hair will not cure squeaky feet, (or vicy versy).

...and Kyroot said:

Living in the penthouse may be neat, but one cost you should note is the increased distance from your car.

...and Kyroot said:

Out in that free-wheeling park I mentioned in the City, I recently saw a Man leap up and shout, "Where do I go to resign?"

...and Kyroot said:

At least those with worry as a friend have a friend for life.

...and Kyroot said:

Memory is for keeping Men from trying anything TOO new.

...and you know who added:

It's also to keep Men from trying too HARD.

...and Kyroot said:

Heard one guy say that he'd "had it up to here with knocking on patience's door.

...and Kyroot said:

Never let 'em film the final hours of a revolution.

...and Kyroot said:

Time is the ultimate, 3-dimensional measurement.

...and Kyroot said:

One literary chap claims, in reference to his theories on the power of words,
that history, for instance, would have been kinder to the poet Thomas Brown if it were easier to rhyme
with his name.

...and Kyroot said:

Some of you, well, a few of you, ARE beginning to glimpse when I tell you that things are not as bad as you THINK they are UNTIL you think they are. (Of course, the terror beyond
even this fright
is that NOTHING
is as you think
it is until you
think it is,
but we'll
leave that little part
for some later Saturday
weekend.)

...and Kyroot said:

As declared in the City: The three most important areas of contemporary life are, health, wealth, and gossip.

...and Kyroot said:

You generally only have one chance to "say it right."

...and Kyroot said:

The kind of discomfort most people are prepared to endure is in recounting their everyday irritations.

...and Kyroot said:

Recently heard a wild-eyed bricklayer who had been attending night classes at a City college pronounce, "The aim of culture seems clear enough
to me: To keep regular guys from enjoying themselves."

...and Kyroot said:

One guy told his son to quit belly aching about every little thing, "Hey,
just look at life as a 'cheap
ticket'."

...and Kyroot said:

S'weird, but sometimes the crowd seems more than the players.

(You mean you find it NORMAL for
the audience to outnumber the actual combatants?)'

...and Kyroot said:

Heard of one guy who supposedly told himself, "Hey, you don't interest me enough to even be boring."

...and Kyroot said:

Remember this: It gets dark at least ONCE almost every day.

...and Kyroot said:

The dead don't dance.

...and Kyroot said:

The best policy may well be NO policy.