If you do have to hang around in the City at least keep this in mind,
"Don't hang around in the City."

The trompe l'oeil world of the mind again carried to its deserved limit:

A Man is given the job of counting the number of automobiles entering a parking lot since it should legally accommodate only fifty, and he leaves after getting to thirty, figuring, "It's been correct so far, and probably would be on up to fifty."

Adios, small details.

Remember, week end warriors; In someone else's game your scores never count as much as their's.
And, oh yeah, ALL games
are someone else's.

This fleshy sort of City father noted to his anxious son, "Look, if I've told you ONCE, I've already lied to you."

...and Kyroot said:

"Hey, let that be a lesson to you."

"What?"

"That's just the point."

Be proud,

Be brave;

Don't be a sloven knave. Stand right up, and say,

"I'm not me, and I didn't do it."
