

...and Kyroot said:

If you've got personal problems you GOT no personal

...and Kyroot said:

The only history actually worth knowing is the stuff everyone forgot, (the stuff hiding between all those remembered words and stories).

.

...and Kyroot said:

One man told his son, "Don't EVER be lead by anyone in any sort of uniform, or costume."

...and Kyroot said:

If necessary you can "invite 'em along", but then always quietly leave a few days ahead of schedule.

...and Kyroot said:

Noisy revolutions may be inevitable, but noisy RevolutionISTS are another matter.

...and Kyroot said:

"What's the difference between being blithely dumb, and at least suspecting you might could be otherwise?"

"I don't know."

"That's just the point,
now ain't it."

...and Kyroot said:

A Revolutionist heard that a serious City maxium was that "You should never start a fight you can't win.", and whilst being captive of irrepressible laughter, He fell down and ripped His trousers.

...and Kyroot said:

There was this one fellow who, first thing in the morning would declare,
"Ah hah!, since they haven't killed me yet I'm in good shape for the rest of the day."

...and Kyroot said:

I heard a guy say to his little nephew, who was always complaining of how dumb other people are, the following, "They may be, but rather than being upset you should be happy to be smart enough to help make up for it."

...and Kyroot said:

Under a variety of conditions, a Revolutionist should always be thinking,
"Training, its training...I'm still in training."

...and Kyroot said:

"Hey", this one guy cried out, "Where's the justice? You can be born in only one way, but can die in several dozen?"

...and Kyroot said:

Some interests (if not loves) may best flourish in secret (if not the dark).

...and Kyroot said:

If it's something you really want to keep don't throw it away in words.

...and Kyroot said:

In one in,
and
out one out,
that's how things get moved about.

(How else, sweet Montague.)

...and Kyroot said:

There's this fellow, presently situated in the Shetland Islands, who sez he will "think on" any ideas you have, for a time, and then return them to you, "assuming you wish them returned."

...and Kyroot said:

Everyone has a garbage door; a side egress through which to dispatch stuff to the refuse heap. And the door is named
"talk"

...and Kyroot said:

A young lad asked his grandfather about the nature of "disappointment", and was told a story about a boy who sought the advice of a famous wise man regarding this same question, and was told to constantly look up into the depths of the heavens and ponder how "unimportant" he and his little disappointments were on the "great universal scale", and after six, or eight fruitless days of this pursuit the boy suddenly thought, "Hey, regardless of all that philosophical stuff, I'm still important to ME."

After a moment the grandson sez,

"So, that about wraps it up, eh Gramps?"

"Yeah kid, that about does it."

...and Kyroot said:

I still kinda like this one guy's motto: He used to say, "Do all you can when you can, then later, perhaps,
do nothing."

...and Kyroot said:

As long as you see indignation safely passed off as intelligence and insight rest easy, you're still in the City.

...and Kyroot said:

A Real Revolutionist has no return address.