

...and Kyroot said:

In the City its hard NOT to be a piker.

...and Kyroot said:

It requires the services of at least two people to establish any human problem.

...and Kyroot said:

One father would line up his four sons each morning, and shout at them,

"If you got a duty, do it.

If you ain't got a duty - get one!"

...and Kyroot said:

Who is it that truly represents the most complex danger to a State, the powerful, or the powerless?

(As someone in the back of the world suspected, this
IS a trick question.)

...and Kyroot said:

Any question worth-a-damn is a trick question.

...and Kyroot said:

Within the Revolutionist's system is always room for benevolent assassination.

...and Kyroot said:

Don't bother to go see a new species on their opening night.

...and Kyroot said:

Two more City voices in the cariocha of conversation,

"What could be more full of promise than an egg?"

The reply,

"A full stomach?"

...and Kyroot said:

Don't forget, next week is the monthly meeting of that formidable City organization, The Society For The Increasing Influence Of Limited Minds.

See you
there.

...and Kyroot said:

Heard some good advice for both in-here, and out-ther, "When in a strange
court call everyone
'Your Grace'."

...and Kyroot said:

If they were to try and compliment you on certain efforts, and you were somehow obliged to respond say,
"Its my job man, its just my job."

...and Kyroot said:

That ole terra-toned City philosopher in the park caught me last night and asked, "Hey, my question of the hour is this: Do enrollments in Geology studies increase immediately after an earthquake?"

...and Kyroot said:

There is this fellow quite near Warsaw, who calls himself, "The Very Large Fellow", and he says that the impression is even greater if you see him by himself.

...and Kyroot said:

Once you realize that "its all packaging" you gotta then consider the trade of RE-packaging.

...and Kyroot said:

There's a guy who sez He's figured out what the "D's" stand for in the term, "Three-D universe", dumb, dumber, and dumbest.

...and Kyroot said:

I saw a guy squinting, and rubbing his eyes, who finally said, "Jeeze, I guess I've reached the age to where my eyes are playing tricks on me.", and his neighbor thought, "How's he gonna feel when he finds out about his MIND."

...and Kyroot said:

In City affairs Men are driven to say and believe such things as,

"Although it may not come to be in our lifetime we will have the comfort in dying to know that we assisted in its ultimate arrival." At least in this Revolutionary activity you'll never have to say... hell, you can NEVER say that.

...and Kyroot said:

Ordinary "truth" is growth embalmed.

...and Kyroot said:

A former political leader, in his dying days, sat on a mountain top looking on his City and thought, "How, how can I have any hope for a state made up of People just like me?"

...and Kyroot said:

The rich are beautiful, but the free are MAGNIFICENT.