

...and Kyroot said:

Anyone with talent is just asking for trouble.

...and Kyroot said:

Remember this: If you gotta ask, NO one's on first.

...and Kyroot said:

Why be Moe when you can be Larry, Curley, AND Moe.

...and Kyroot said:

A Real Revolutionist never has enough room, or too little stuff.

...and Kyroot said:

All solutions are just substitutions.

...and Kyroot said:

Revolutions, even just drastic change, can never be neutral events; depending on their position, all observers either fear, or applaud them.

...and Kyroot said:

How can you ever expect to be healthy if your hobbies include an interest in illness, and pathology?

...and Kyroot said:

There is no way to properly "feel sorry" for your fellow man til you AREN'T one.

...and Kyroot said:

Man Himself is the ever-present boundry of human knowledge.

...and Kyroot said:

Time thought about is time killed.

...and Kyroot said:

Only two things can't be brought back to life: Things dead, and things
REAL dead.

...and Kyroot said:

All human concepts harbour within themselves their own, destructive, evil twin concept.

...and Kyroot said:

If you're talking too much for your own good then be aware that you're then talking for someone ELSE'S good.

...and Kyroot said:

Praise The Beige, and Band The Bland: Nothing - no thing is moral, good, evil, or otherwise to a Revolutionist; its just that somethings He doesn't do,
thank you.

...and Kyroot said:

Heard one revolutionist appearing sort refer to fear as "the adored foe."

...and Kyroot said:

During a recent City interview a famous violinist hugged his wife, and declared how she was unflagging in her encouraging him to become a legend.

...and Kyroot said:

In the City game, Men write fables who lack the needed vitriol to be critics.

...and Kyroot said:

A Real Revolutionist should have His own little way of doing things...
(even if its just His own LITTLE way.)

...and Kyroot said:

Don't make dumb noises unless you're the paid game in a stupid shoot.

...and Kyroot said:

A Real Revolutionist never runs out of things not to say.