

...and Kyroot said:

Show me your sketch of a pessimistic explorer.

...and Kyroot said:

There is no such thing as a "foreign language".

...and Kyroot said:

The human nervous system is a systematized measuring device; and the intellect its print-out.

...and Kyroot said:

That which is "too vague" is never actually so, or it could not so initially be named.

...and Kyroot said:

Is the beneficial concern for the transmission, or the reception?

...and Kyroot said:

Every word has three definitions, and every definition has three uses, and every use has three lives.

...and Kyroot said:

No need to wear out your tires looking for role models.

...and Kyroot said:

A Real Explorer looks upon extremes as merely degrees on a compass.

...and Kyroot said:

A Man who notes only what He sees can use last year's diary forever.

...and Kyroot said:

The Real Explorer must be able to confront new data without relying on old measuring devices.

...and Kyroot said:

Even limits have their limits.

...and Kyroot said:

Self-abuse is a crime in an Explorer's own dialogue.

...and Kyroot said:

At the base of everything is just about what some imagine.

...and Kyroot said:

If you know what two of your feet look like you can figure out the other one.

...and Kyroot said:

Why does fat, and passion have more characteristics than the intellect?

...and Kyroot said:

Outside those areas where things are "strictly controlled" things are still strictly controlled.

...and Kyroot said:

Hey, turn on another station.

...and Kyroot said:

The proper drug-of-choice must either contain blood, sweat, or spinal fluid.

...and Kyroot said:

Those who know the obvious for what it is never forget to call home.

...and Kyroot said:

Talk is a laundry.