~~Travel Advisory Pertinent All Local Cities:~~

Somewhere between the beginning and the end,

The essence of the middle was re-routed.

Finding himself alone in the rest room of his favorite tavern, this one fellow said to his reflection,
"As you should know by now,
I ain't much for associating
with bums - present company
excepted."

The chemical, physical, electrical and mathematical nature of three dimensional structures remain such that in the City. all attempts to help will eventually themselves become a problem.

All actions not only produce re-actions,
But all actions ARE re-actions,
(and vice versa).

One kid, way over there, way off so far that you don't have to worry about it said, "Ole-man, I sometimes fear I can't live up to your expectations.", and the father replied, "Hell, why sweat it, I can't live up to them either

Hey, give everything its due,

In the speech performance,

Even with a performer and an audience available and anxious, remember -

No words,

No talk.

One youngster over in that kiddie-bar told me that, "Deep down inside, Everyone's a crayon."

Remember; So long as it's alive,
The jury's still out.

That which is too telling, and too obvious,
Is also,
Not so obvious.

One ruler told his people that he was "really tired, stressed out," and was going on an indefinite leave; he said, "For now, you'll have to dominate yourselves."

...(A little cobbler in the crowd, actually he was an particle accelerator, thought, "Does that include mistreating ourselves also?")

Anyone

Still at all

Impressed with themself

Has yet to be impressed

By anything impressive,

Or profitable..

Ordinary explanations,
Explain themselves,
More than anything else.

The critic approached the performer, offered his hand and a drink and said,
"I didn't even know if you'd speak to me after that blistering review I did of
you; to tell you the truth
I didn't know what you'd think about it.", the artist
replied, "And you were right!"

On this partially forgettable little planet I recently dropped in on a combination New-Age-Ole-Sorehead's Convention wherein I heard one speaker propose, "Let all those who poo-poo the power of names and numerology take note of this; No one named Ashkenazy, or Rachmaninoff has ever played in Merle Haggard's band.

Regardless of how it clearly seems in secondary affairs in the City,
The real strength,
Real danger is from near chaos,
Not disciplined order.

The opposite of anything is at best,
Of no more significance than the first thing itself.

You could say that chess is a metaphor for doing This;

You might say that fencing is a metaphor for doing This;

You could even say that This is a metaphor for doing This.

Remember:

It doesn't matter so much

WHAT something's called

So long as it's called something.

Over near the flying subway entrance of a buzz planet, a fellow dressed like a father told a smaller version of himself, smelling like a son, "Kid, there're two ways you can go about this life; You can try to get justice, Or you can try to get by."

If you're really gonna roll along with this kinda stuff,
You should be manipulating,
Massaging,
And just generally manhandling your own brain.

Unless you plan to settle down, and retire in the City, memorize these'
Refreshing Rules Of Rebellious Etiquette:
Don't dwell on "seems";
Don't lean on "apparently",
And never, ever drink with the "obvious".
