

...and Kyroot said:

The primary world

Reproduce

Through sex,

The secondary through talk.

...and Kyroot said:

~ * ~ ~ ~

Another ole sore head,
Just over there,
Leaning on academia bushes
Says he clearly sees
The specific time that Man began to stray from his natural path,
And it was, he avers,
When he ceased to write
Autobiographies as fiction,
And began to base them on the actual life he had led.

04/30/90- (2.5)

...and Kyroot said:

Another good thing about being a Revolutionist - a REAL Revolutionist, is that you can't retire.

...and Kyroot said:

The first guy stood and declared,

"I state forthwith

My extreme pleasure and relief

At having at least

Lived through the Industrial Revolution.",

To which his second guy replied,

"Not likely! - You're not old enough.",

And number one fellow exclaimed,

"WHAT? - you mean it's still not over?"

...and Kyroot said:

"Mentioning" something to a Revolutionist can be as good as "explaining" it.

...and Kyroot said:

The Age Of Merriment

Still lives!, but

To re-join the festivities

You must avenge the present

Lack of chivalry towards stupidity.

.....(Excalibur exists

Though it's now

Wedged in our own

Critical mass.)

...and Kyroot said:

One guy who'd apparently really been mistreated by life said,
"I can take it.",
which proved to be a damned efficient arrangement.

...and Kyroot said:

Spaketh one good father
With one good eye,
"Kid,
If you're gonna
Keep on being sarcastic
You might as well go on and Get a job."

...and Kyroot said;

If you don't care what people think of you they won't much...

. (It really, really helps if you do the same about them.)

...and Kyroot said:

Over in a slightly sifted - I mean, shifted,
Time zone,

A little group calling themselves the
"Pro-Thinking Society"

Has as their motto,

"Oh, Hi There."

...and Kyroot said:

One god said

That his job would Actually be pretty boring - to a human.

...and Kyroot said:

A warm part of one guy's brain cried out,
"Face it, Claude, a verb is not a home!", and while he was staggering about under the dazzling weight of this explosion his left foot suddenly injected,
"Hey, but neither is a noun.",
"Wow!", gasped his pockets, "That's ALL I needed!"

04/30/90-(8)

...and Kyroot said:

Talk is to time

As silence is to silence.

...and Kyroot said:

There are monarchs of the mountains,
and kings of the ravines,
and often do their interests overlap,
and often is it not seen by the people.

...and Kyroot said:

When offered the choice

Between "two evils"

Select the one with staying power.

.....(A short lived frolic

On the rack,

Takes you there then

Snaps you back.)

04/30/90-(9.5)

...and Kyroot said:

Those who can act excited
ARE excited.

...and Kyroot said:

(You might care to jot this down):

If half the people are right,

And half of them are wrong - Even if',

There's still

TWO eternities.

...and Kyroot said:

Okay then -

Those who can act - and you really gotta know how to pull this off - those who can act knowledgable
ARE knowledgable.

...and Kyroot said:

One kid,
Who seemed to revel in being so,
Thought to himself - (who else),
"An unexpected thought is like
Having a relative you didn't know existed
Not come see you."

...and Kyroot said:

This one ole dude
when he be hangin' out and socializin' with his more "arty" and talented friends, quite often, after several alcoholic beverages,
would loud-enough-to-be-heard say,
"You don't have to be crazy to be creative but aren't these hors d'oeuvres tasty."

.....(Yeah - but all-the-same,
EVERY body knew what he meant except him.)

...and Kyroot said:

One fellow

Who would ingest only

Herbs and shoots

Did so by explaining that

His literary mater was killed by a couplet.

...and Kyroot said:

A certain Revolutionist from another district once noted to an aide that from a particular view men could be seen as constituting three different camps;
The Ordinary,
The Revolutionists, and
The Pretend Revolutionists, and the last group believe they're the only ones
"living a natural life", and
"doing god's will"
while the true Revolutionist knows that this distinction most properly belongs to the Ordinary.

...and Kyroot said:

The sound of gunfire
Rings mainly in the memory.

...and Kyroot said:

Aggression Update Number, "Laugh-Not-Guaranteed":

One ole sore head, on mornings he awoke not feeling particularly angry, would become very frightened.

...and Kyroot said:

Over on this one world,
Fairly complex by certain verbal standards,
They say that a man who Wouldn't cheat his brother
Wouldn't save his mother from drowning.....(They also say They're misunderstood
By their neighbors).

...and Kyroot said;

This other guy suddenly slapped himself on the forehead (since he was the closest) and exclaimed,

"Well now, by god, well NOW I get it;

How clear can it be; To have 'human emotions'
you just gotta be human."

...and Kyroot said:

Catching a train

In the City

Can be almost as profitable

As missing it was yesterday.

...and Kyroot said:

Over at a recent God Convention

a terrible fight broke out...Ah, I was just fooling, I made that part up - There wasn't any damn "god convention."

...and Kyroot said:

Those philosophers of 'ore
Who went forth seeking the Wise and perfected man
All returned with major complaints,
Unknowingly,
Condemning men for having characteristics.

...and Kyroot said:

As regards the continual chase

From processes to things-specific,

Back to processes and on again to things-specific,

Take apropos note:

You can't become rich

Without becoming a rich person.....(This is no less so Regarding death.)

...and Kyroot said:

A fellow with a simply stunning booby collection said it was, "Just one of several normally overlooked rewards of coming in last."

.....(A nine-foot-pole-manufacturer hearing this comment remarked that he wouldn't touch it even with a competitor's product.)

...and Kyroot said:

What's left after you

Get through talking about something

Is what you had before you started.

.....(Day-0,

Maybe Day-0...)

...and Kyroot said:

Early one morning,
quite unexpectedly,
certainly before he had time to leap or pole vault from the bed to get a pencil, or some other sharp object with which to fend,
one guy's brain told him,
"Those who sometimes make reference to an 'unwarranted conclusion' don't know the half of it.", and the chap suddenly both tensed and relaxed in a state of pre-dawn light and exclaimed for himself,
"Hell, those who refer to unwarranted conclusions don't know the ALL of it."

...and Kyroot said:

Anything that's Food for thought
Is fodder for humor.

...and Kyroot said:

Instead of saying,
"category, type, sort, style or species",
this one cat,
when he meant, "genre"
would say, "genre."

...and Kyroot said:

Having a pithy conclusion
Is NOT the same as Having a pithy.

...and Kyroot said:

All that other stuff's goin' on just so yours can.

.....(P.S.: There's a longer version of this but
"WHO-NEEDS-IT!")