

...and Kyroot said:

All "problems"

come from eternity - not from local conditions, as appears.

...and Kyroot said:

If you discover a fact that seems to lead to yet another fact,
and you think this gives unusual importance to the first fact,
then you don't have your facts straight yet.

...and Kyroot said:

In one City,
the cornerstone of their leading literary institution
held the inscription; "When In Doubt - Be Ironic."

...and Kyroot said:

One ole king became so enraged at synonyms
that he banished his partner from the kingdom.

...and Kyroot said:

On this one certain curious planet

(I say "curious" just to exercise and keep current my literary license)

the children have a sing-song they chant as they skip seriousness - I mean, skip rope;

It goes like this:

"The thin behind

Have this rhyme;

'The avant garde

Run on lard,

While the weighty ahead

Live in dread'."

.....(Hey, what'da kids know!)

...and Kyroot said:

There may be some hope
for a man who won't listen to nobody;

.....(but you gotta take the word "nobody" REAL serious)

...and Kyroot said:

Two heads are better than one - unless you're shopping for a hat.

...and Kyroot said:

One guy was so quick at naming things,
and locking them into good, confining concepts
that he sometimes called himself, Norman Clature.

...and Kyroot said:

A viewer writes to say how much he enjoyed my mention of that world where they allowed men to unconditionally defend themselves against all charges and complaints with the comment, "My hormones made me do it.", and he says he assumes this includes all possible human acts save intellectual;
.....(Now wait, don't get so harsh on the guy, after all, [now repeat after me] , "His hormones made him assume that.")

...and Kyroot said:

One religion tried to call itself,
"The Carbonation In The Cola Of Life.", but they were sued quick enough, all right.

...and Kyroot said:

After hearing about the man who'd always say, "sic"
before he spoke this one guy said it might be neat if he did the same thing right before he thought..("That is", he said,
"I mean, you know,
like if I ever get around to thinking
about something.")

...and Kyroot said:

Trafficking with others can make you wealthy;
doing so with yourself can make you glad.

...and Kyroot said:

A man intellectually concerned
over his City having enemies will have more himself than his neighbors do in-laws and roaches.

...and Kyroot said:

An army is certainly suspect inwhich Medals Of Valour are awarded to those whose pinnacle of achievement was in not committing suicide.

.....(I say, there seems to be a misprint here;
that's not "army",
it should say,
"A class of creatures
is certainly suspect".)

...and Kyroot said:

A man whose hobby is collecting common denominators has recently informed me that after trying to "think-on", and
"confirm" some of the ideas he's heard around here that he's finding the "truth"
turns out to always be
"curious and coincidental."

...and Kyroot said:

An excited viewer contacts us to say that he first felt the significance of this Revolutionist activity when he suddenly realized that no matter who you are,
where you live, what you think, or who dresses you that EVERYbody's bar mitzvahed in a suit that LIFE provided.

...and Kyroot said:

A little song I overheard by the open door
of a bar near the heart of the City, (it wenteth liketh dith):

"Oh beer can do

More than Dante do,

To justify my

Treatment of you."

...and Kyroot said:

After hearing my comments regarding, "Facts follow acts", this one guy suddenly realized, "Hey, why'dya think they call it the SECONDARY world!"

...and Kyroot said:

As soon as its delivery is complete the first thing new born ideas say is,
"Okay, I know he's around here - Let me at'im!"

...and Kyroot said:

One Revolutionist wouldn't fool with anything that had a preface.

...and Kyroot said:

One mother's defense of her kid
was as follows, (and I strictly quote).

"He may seem stupid and shallow on the outside,
but inside - he's quite moody."

...and Kyroot said:

There're two ways to learn every lesson -
this way,
and that other way.

...and Kyroot added:

Yeah - sure there's a third way.

...and Kyroot said:

At a free lance lecture I fell into last evening
one of the speakers put forward the notion that if it weren't for the word "and"
we wouldn't have so many improper things verbally put together.

...and Kyroot said:

One ole man who remained inclined in such affairs
took the kid aside, then afront and aback until he had the little nipper totally before him, then said,
"Although there are several proper ways to run off in the ditch there's only one bywhich to dial the phone for a wrecker.";
.....(the kid thought on this for a while,
then drifted off to sleep).

.

...and Kyroot said:

After a life time
spent on spasmodic attempts at self-improvement,
as he stretched out on his apparent death bed,
this one chap surveyed his life and announced,
"Well, if I am not now actually my 'own best friend'
at least I am no longer my own worst pair of shoes."

...and Kyroot said:

The difference between comedy and This is not in the material - but the audience.

...and Kyroot said:

At a small social gathering last evening
a small social person stood beside me and said that one of his highest, personal pleasures was in giving himself the old "run around".

...and Kyroot said:

You could kinda look at facts as being the hamburger helper to acts.

...and Kyroot said:

They're now talking about a man
who took some pills to "feel better",
and who inadvertently got to feeling better than he intended.

...and Kyroot said:

The continuing interplay between the cats and the birds is supported in part by the apparent indifference of the hippos;
at a recent meeting of the three parties
no one in a position of authority could comprehend the significance of this.

.....(the only piece of business that was accomplished was that several of the aviators lodged a formal protest with the Steering Committee
over a listing on the convention menu
of, "Blue Bird Pudding".)

...and Kyroot said:

On a Wednesday (and that's a Wednesday with an "es" - not the other way around),
at a Stand-up, Sit-down, Then-Stand-Back-Up buffet, a fellow told me that he had changed his name to,
Basic-And-Forward,
and went on to say that it had proved to be less than a complete waste of time.

...and Kyroot said:

Another viewer writes to say that he won't be writing any more.

...and Kyroot said:

One guy got so mad
he changed his name.

...and Kyroot said:

Upon first hearing those lines,
"I, a stranger and afraid, Alone and weary in a world I never made",
one fellow fell pensive,
and after a bit of inner silence thought to himself,
"What poetic imagery,
what pathos,
what an unashamed uncovering of human emotion,
what a treasure trove of cosmic pig shit."

...and Kyroot said:

Thinking the same thing twice
is not so bad if you thought it the first time under duress.
Everything men think is under duress.

...and Kyroot said:

One spring day,
over near the courthouse,
one guy announced,
"I've decided to 'come clean',
to 'fess up,
bring it out in the open, and generally let it all hang out.", and the City replied,
"Not on my new secondary carpet you don't."

...and Kyroot said:

To try and maintain some equitable balance between the communicative viewers and myself
I went ahead and wrote to one and said,
"I hope this doesn't come as a shock to you."

...and Kyroot said:

This one guy said that life wasn't worth living,
and that he wished he was dead;
this other fellow replied that such feelings were totally unfounded and that those who felt so deserved our comfort and concern;
.....(they're taking this act on the road
just as soon as the weather clears up.)

...and Kyroot said:

One inward-glancing ole sore head mumbled something or other to me
while we were standing by a baklava cart near the park,
I asked him to repeat it, and he turned to walk away,
and I reminded him that if he did so this Kyroot would get incompleated, and apparently my mangling of the King's English annoyed him
just enough that he stopped and re-mumbled his comments
at least a bit louder this time;
what he had said was this,
"If sex was ANY more fun
I'm almost sure I wouldn't deserve it."

...and Kyroot said:

Welllll....if it makes you feel any better I'll admit,
there are a few people on this planet who still haven't figured out what's going on.....

.....(Oops, I did it again, right?
you're one of them;
Oops & double-oops.)

...and Kyroot said:

A man without a hero
might actually be a man.