

...and Kyroot said:

Once you have identified them by name,
camshafts don't care to discuss predestination with you.

...and Kyroot said:

In these 3-D universes

we periodically hear of kings who were poets;

every now and then we even hear of kings who were good poets..(but just

every

now

and then.)

... and Kyroot said:

Life too sweats,
but sometimes won't admit it.

...and Kyroot said:

During this short break while the contestants re-load their weapons,
I thought I'd bring you one guy's religious notation for the day;
he avers that so long as the gods have only humans as their spokesmen they're in a world of trouble.

...and Kyroot said:

You could consider the continuing notions
of some common basis of all cultures in light of the possibility that a single virus was the cause of all civilizations.

... and Kyroot said:

From day to day,

week to week,

have you met everyone who can show up in the ice tray?

...and Kyroot said:

Elective politics is like rock & roll
without the music.

... and Kyroot said:

Okay then, remember THIS: A man without a permit
NEEDS a gun.

...and Kyroot said:

One guy's advice to his younger kin was,
"Hold 'er in the road , or else - widen the road."

...and Kyroot said:

Some Subversive History-Cum-Archeological Technology: Sunglasses are simply a later version of knowledge.

... and Kyroot said:

All mortal - does that say "mortal", or "mental"?...well, let's try it:
All mortal tyrants are sissies,
but why should YOU be the one to tell them?

...and Kyroot said:

A man who lives in the City
named his alter ego Dilbert Dicklebrain.
(but it's not actually as bad as it sounds since he didn't have an alter ego.)

... and Kyroot said:

Hand gestures are where acts and facts continue to meet.

...and Kyroot said:

When the light's "just right"

many people can see it.....(Of course it's only for a second, and only on special occasions.)

...and Kyroot said:

As the troops massed, prepared to go over the top,
the General arrived with some final words,
"In the harsh hours ahead,
pay no attention to death
unless it is your own."

... and Kyroot said:

The ratio of anything to everything is truly astounding when seen.

...and Kyroot said:

There is a fellow who works over near Technology Central

who says he will answer "personal questions"

only when forced to do so.....(he hands out little cards which state
that he is easily
forced to answer
personal questions.)

... and Kyroot said:

And - Oh Yeah,
working for an unknown employer
is ALSO not unlike the tango.

...and Kyroot said:

Another acid-proof-test: Knowledge isn't real human knowledge unless someone made it up.

... and Kyroot said:

One of the leaders stated,
"It is the duty of the superior to BE superior."

...and Kyroot said:

Fluff up the pillows with kindness,
fat heads stay over tonight.

... and Kyroot said:

A viewer from the west side writes to say that he has begun to periodically hear quite distinct messages that say,
"Hello, hello,
this is Life calling,
is anyone there? - can you hear me?"

...and Kyroot said:

One guy said to himself that he'd be as likely to commit murder as he would suicide - (which he found to be of real comfort.)

... and Kyroot said:

There was this one other fellow who decided to draw up a chronological outline of his intellectual development - it stopped at about the time of Cromwell - No, I don't mean
his knowledge of history stopped there, I mean
HIS DEVELOPMENT!

... and Kyroot said:

In response to this evening's second Kyroot
(regarding the distance between sovereigns and the poetic muse)
one monarch wants his words heard, says His Grace,
"It is hard to exercise power AND good taste."

.....(As my regal ole cousin used to say,
"Out of the mouths of humans ofttimes come words.")

... and Kyrroot said:

A man with a million dollars can afford to walk.

...and Kyroot said:

One youngish chap said
he wanted to go where there was"no morality",
and he was told to "go back home."

... and Kyroot said:

If you ain't got secrets you ain't got it.....Oh no!,

I don't mean secrets like in stuff you GOTTA hide.

...and Kyroot said:

Things that are not, (quote), "necessarily the same",
are NOT the same.

... and Kyroot said:

One ole man told his kid,

"Whenever anyone offers you counsel

they have - no matter how well hiddden -

a vested interest in the advice they give.",

and the lad thought, "And that's YOUR advice for the day, ay?", and the elder admitted, "No, I just told you that on Life's orders."

...and Kyroot said:

In another life
the greatest insect repellent is courage.

...and Kyroot said:

In some parts of the world
a name change
costs less than a face lift.

...and Kyroot said:

Everyone dreams of Cinderella,
but hardly anyone is satisfied
until they marry the Step-mother.

...and Kyroot said:

One Revolutionist told a bud,

"It's all so obvious

it's almost a shame to talk about it."